

Scenario

Fade from Title Screen
Looking at main entrance
Climbing up to the Balcony
Breaking into the bedroom, shattering some glass
Looking at the sign of struggle/house arrest/torture on the bed
picking up a password piece
picking up a password piece
looking at the unreachable password piece failing to penetrate the metal door as a spirit picking up key starting up the generator with player character cannot start up the generator as a spirit password input not responding when unpowered password input not responding when generator ran out

Dialogue

Another day, another haunted house I tread. People seek solace from the afterlife, entrusting me to expel the malevolent dread. But little do they know, this adept exorcist wields dark cultist's technique.
This house has been boarded up good. To keep people out, I wonder? Or is it to keep something in?
Some people say that most break-ins start from the second floor.
Not exactly subtle, but effective.
Whatever happened here ain't pretty.
This might mean something.
This will come in handy.
I'll just have to remember it.
This door's been reinforced.
How careless.
I hope this thing lasts
This antique needs a manual recoil to start.
Can't do anything without power.
Darn it, the generator's down.